Harris declares polarized zone race 'sad commentary'

PLEASANTON — Incumbent Zone 7 board chairman Dave Harris, a candidate for re-election, said yesterday he lacks confidence in the majority of men running in the June 8 race for three seats on the zone board.

Harris called the candidates doctrinaire, and charged the race has been polarized by a valley newspaper. "It's a sad commentary for the valley," Harris said.

Harris made his remarks at a Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce luncheon for zone candidates Archer Futch, Dave Harris, Don Miller and Paul Tull.

Candidates Ed Kinney, Gib Marguth, Tom Schweser and Ken Hart will speak next week.

Don Miller told chamber members he entered the zone race because he lacks confidence in the current zone board. At issue, Miller said, is keeping faith with the public, and local control.

Miller reiterated his campaign charge that the Zone 7 Board of Directors misled the public on Project II bonds to build the Del Valle Water Treatment Plant, dedicated last Saturday.

Miller said the board implied that after completion of Project II, the west end of the valley would receive "Sierra quality" water.

Water rates have risen 40 per cent in two years, Miller noted, to pay for the new plant. He said it was a reversal of the board's promise that connection fees would foot the bill.

If elected, Miller said he would guarantee quality water by contract, and reduce water rates if a higher quality could not be achieved.

In response, Harris, the only incumbent in the race, took time out to prove what he has alleged all along — that he is not a member of a Miller slate of candidates.

Project II, Harris said, completed the zone's promise of better water for customers in the west end of the valley. "I've checked the figures and we are now supplying about three-quarters of Pleasanton's and Dublin's water since the plant started up last November," Harris said.

Water quality, he noted, has improved "by a factor of three since that time."

Archer Futch repeated his conviction that the zone should not become a sewer agency. "To provide sewer or water to developments inconsistent with the areas' general plans would be a giant step toward destroying the good planning of the valley," Futch said.

Such a major development could also destroy the community's economic tax base, Futch warned. And he added that there are no guarantees that treated water destined for the west end of the valley might not be diverted to new development.

Futch noted that Zone 7 has no land planning responsibility. Growth, he declared, is not the major issue in the campaign.

"Should Zone 7 become a sewer agency," Futch said, "That is the major issue in the campaign. He opposes such a role for the zone on the grounds that there is "no need to duplicate with the cities in the sewage treatment area."

Candidate Paul Tull used part of his time at the podium to philosophize on political campaigns and politicians. "There is a surplus of simple answers and an acute shortage of simple problems," he quoted.

Tull said growth is not an issue of the future. "With respect to growth," he said, "it's here. We're almost at the point of no return."

Sports funds could be cut if revenue increase fails

If the revenue increase measure in the Amador Valley Joint High School District fails to gain a majority "yes" vote June 8, the possibility exists the district could eliminate all funds for support of athletics.

Although a specific list of cuts has not been formalized, the Amador district board has reviewed several areas for reduction and/or elimination. These include extending the walking area an additional one-quarter mile, eliminating all district funds for athletics and extracurricular activities (music, drama, speech, etc.), not hiring any additional teachers (thereby increasing class size), reducing allocation of funds for school supplies and materials, reducing custodial services 33 per cent, eliminating towel service, and placing a "hold" on electronics and graphic arts at Foothill High School.

Revenue increase committee members have made it clear from the outset they did not wish to discuss possible cuts as they feared the public would take such talk as a threat.

However, Doug Rose, assistant superintendent for business services, said earlier this week "there is very little left to cut from the current program as past reductions have already occurred at Foothill, Dublin and Amador. Additional financial aid is necessary to maintain the current level of education."

Amador is seeking a revenue increase of 62.6-cents over a period of three years.

The ballot proposes that next year (1976-77) the district have an additional $91.21 added to the revenue limit to meet the inflationary costs of operating the schools. This would increase the current operating tax rate by 24.8 cents. For the next two succeeding years, an additional $91.20 would be added to the revenue limit increasing the tax rate 19.9 cents the second year (1977-78) and 17.9 cents the third year.

This means, according to district figures, that these $91 units would be added to the current revenue limit of $1,312.76 for the next three years to maintain the existing program.

The district says that, for a person owning a $40,000 home, assessed at 25 per cent of its market value, the annual increase in taxes (for Amador schools) would be $24.80 during 1976-77 or $2.07 per month.

For a $50,000 home, whose value is assessed at 25 per cent of the market value, the tax on that house would increase $31 or $2.58 per month during 1976-77.

The figures for a $60,000 home would be $37.20 annually or $3.10 a month.

The speakers bureau of the revenue increase committees have added several engagements, including tonight's presentation at 8 o'clock at Vintage Hills School. The gathering is co-sponsored by the Vintage Hills PTA and Vintage Hills Homeowners.

Dublin principal warns of cuts because of austere '77 budget

PLEASANTON —The effect of an austere budgpt could hit Dublin High School with even greater impact next year if the June 8 revenue increase measure fails.

Bob Hagler, principal at Dublin, told a gathering of Donlon School parents the amount of money per student for supplies will drop to $55. Two years ago it was $77.

The Amador Valley Joint School District is asking a tax increase of 62. 8 cents over three years just to maintain the current level of education.

Hagler also said that, with Foothill soon to have its first senior class, Dublin will no longer will take students from south of Highway 580 from such areas as Val Vista and Foothill Farms. These students will hereafter go to Foothill or Amador.

He said, as a consequence, there will be less teachers (58) and less programs at Dublin High next year.

Sheriff deputy negotiators accept 7 per cent increase

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — Four-hundred county craft workers have joined nearly 6,000 clerks, nurses and welfare and hospital workers their threat to strike next week.

But negotiators for the Alameda County Deputy Sheriffs yesterday agreed to a 7 per cent pay hike for deputies, members of Operating Engineers Union, Local 3, the largest local in the western U.S.

Both craft workers and members of the three Service Employes Unions object to the county's "pay formula" that purports to set salaries at 4 per cent above the median wage in comparable jobs in the Bay Area.

Under that formula and the salary ordinance scheduled to go into effect July 1, craft workers will get no pay increase and service employes a 3.7 per cent hike.

Sheriff's deputies were shown to be 3 per cent below the median wage, a spokesman said, while craft workers are above it.

The Grand Jury earlier this year issued a blistering report that recommends changing the county's crafts pay formula to eliminate a 90 per cent parity scale currently used.

Service employes have asked for a 7 per cent increase and claim the county is trying "to split the union."

Union spokesman Randy Prevo said the supervisors' negotiations and offer have been "vindictive" and charged the board with "riding the crest of anti-labor formented in San Francisco."

That city recently went through a 38-day craft workers strike that spread to public transportation. It was set off by a proposed salary cut.

A county spokesman said "all but a couple of positions" in the craft workers' category will get no pay raise under the county's new ordinance.

The board adjourned to executive session yesterday after their regular morning meeting.

They have met more than half a dozen times behind closed doors to discuss the salary dispute and the threatened strike.

Flag firm sends apologies to Rev. McKern, er, McKean

PLEASANTON — An Ohio firm that sent the Rev. George McKean a personalized Bicentennial flag but spelled his name "McKern" returned his money with an apology yesterday.

Rev. McKean responded to an ad that heralded the patriotic spirit a personalized Bicentennial flag would inspire, sending the American Historical Society a check for $9.95.

He received a flag significantly smaller than advertised, with the name spelled "McKern." This, despite the claim "they have already been made up for selected McKean families. . ."

A letter dated May 21 was received by Rev. McKean yesterday, including a check for $10.74. Yes, the name on the check was spelled correctly.

"We apologize for sending you a McKern flag and are including our refund check for $9.95 plus the $.79 mailing cost to return the flag," the letter states.

Signed by James DiCola, vice president for the Publishing Corporation of America of Canton, Ohio, the letter attempts to explain the misspelling and other errors in the order.

"You are right — the flag size was incorrectly quoted as 16 x 20 inches. It should have been quoted as 15 x 24 inches as we are presently advertising." DiCola goes on to explain that it is "accepted practice throughout the industry" to use the cut flag size, instead of the actual size, due to the addition of hems, grommets and seams.

However, this is not the case, according to Cliff Dutreaux of Barbara's Emblem and Lettering in San Ramon. "If you advertise a flag that's three by five feet, and sell one that's less, that is false advertising. It's as simple as that," Dutreaux said.

The letter further states that Rev. McKean's original order was received on March 15, "ordered by Mr. George T. McKern." Rev. McKean still doesn't understand this. "My name is printed correctly on all my checks, and I use preprinted address labels on my correspondance," he said.

In the introductory letter, apparently printed by computer, Rev. McKean's name was spelled correctly in each instance. But in literature accompanying the flag, his name was misspelled four times. Not including the flag itself.

Company representative DiCola does not explain why Rev. McKean received a misspelled flag, even though the introductory letter said the flags were preprinted "for selected McKean families."

DiCola received a copy of the original story of Rev. McKean's story printed in The Times May 2.

Mailman signs complaint of battery against resident

PLEASANTON — A 22-year-old mail carrier allegedly kneed in the groin after complaining of a loose dog on Segundo Court Saturday signed a citizen's arrest form against the suspect, police said yesterday.

Peter Christopher Pierson told police he was delivering mail on his regular rounds Saturday morning when he noticed a loose dog. He told the dog's owner that he would refuse to deliver her mail if the dog wasn't kept inside or on a leash.

The next day, while delivering mail at the same location, John Allison Wright, 30, approached Pierson and asked him what he said to upset his wife. According to police reports, Pierson began to explain when Wright allegedly kneed the man in the groin and left.

A witness told police she saw the two men talking and saw Pierson fall backwards, but did not see any blows because a car had obstructed her vision.

Pierson was taken to Valley Memorial Hospital for treatment. Wright was booked on suspicion of battery, police reported.

Baby found dead in Pleasanton home

PLEASANTON — A two-year-old mongoloid baby suffering from a cold was found dead last Thursday by his mother, police reported Tuesday.

John Edward Rusin, born to Valerie Rusin in July, 1973 was pronounced dead on arrival at Valley Memorial Hospital early Thursday.

According to police reports, Rusin told police the child was suffering from a cold but had not been to a doctor for one year because she is a Christian Scientist.

Rusin told police that she retired about 12:30 a.m. Thursday, then awoke at 5 a.m. and found the baby dead.

Rusin, a live-in housekeeper at a Menlo Court home, told police that the baby was last checked by a doctor at Children's Orthopedic Hospital in Seattle, Wash., about a year ago, police reported.

The report was delayed until yesterday because officers were unable to contact Rusin, it was reported.

No cause of death has yet been listed pending pathological tests, a spokesman for the coroner's office said yesterday.

Burglars steal tools from pick-up

LIVERMORE — Burglars entered a pick-up truck belonging to Robert Eugene Jones and took a toolbox containing tools worth $250, police reported yesterday.

Jones told police that the vehicle, parked in front of his Del Mar Avenue home, was locked when he left it Saturday night. Police speculate that thieves may have used a coathanger device to force entry.

Missing items include 1/2-inch and 3/8-inch socket sets, box wrenches, deep socket set and other tools. Jones told police that several tools were inscribed with the initials "M.E.J."

Police have no suspects in the case.

Overcross still on

PLEASANTON — City Council insisted this week that a proposed Las Positas overcrossing for I-680 is still in the works. In fact, council members informed concerned residents of the Val Vista area that a pedestrian overpass is a real possibility if $450,000 can be dredged up for construction.

A Val Vista contingent, along with homeowners west of I-680, clamored for action at the council's meeting Monday night.

They asked the city to drop out of an agreement with Stoneson Corp., tying that to their hopes for the Las Positas overpass.

A Stoneson development in Pleasanton is also scheduled for a freeway overcrossing. Residents reasoned that their Las Positas overpass has been shoved down the priority list by the Stoneson structure.

Council members pointed out, however, that the two are not related. They went on to insist that a Las Positas overpass still rates high priority.

A pedestrian crossing could be erected for $450,000, but it would probably require a bond election, it was reported.

The state highway department committed itself to construction of an overpass when I-680 was developed. Since then, however, funds for the project have dried up.

Students from Foothill High School have taken an interest in the Las Positas issue, and presented some concerns to the council Monday.

Between 10 and 20 students cross the freeway daily, it was reported on treks to and from school. Some employ culverts snaking under the roadway. Others boldly dash across lanes of traffic.

One spokesperson took a practical approach, claiming that a Las Positas overpass might influence west Pleasanton residents to shop in their own downtown. The Stoneson overcrossing, said the spokesperson, would foster a shopping migration to Dublin.

Don Savery and Ed Alves asked council members to attend a public hearing on the issue June 7 at the Val Vista Rec Center. The state highway department will sponsor the hearing.

In other developments Monday the council appointed Kathy O'Brien to the park and recreation commission, replacing Ken Mercer, who won a seat on the council.

O'Brien becomes the first woman to hold the post since Diana Larson served for park and rec back in the 1960's.

Howard "Bud" Garrigan, recently retired planning commissioner, was tabbed to replace Ryan McKeon on the park commission. According to Mayor Robert Philcox, McKeon will leave the commission this summer because he is moving out of the area.

O'Brien and Garrigan were mentioned by four of the five council members when Philcox requested a list of nominees.

Discussion of a Gas And Save service station for Johnson Industrial Boulevard and Hopyard Road was continued, as was a rezoning request for expansion of a Shell service station on First Street.

ABAG nixes plan review

OAKLAND — County supervisors have failed to get the Association of Bay Area Governments to reconsider condemnation of development plans for the Las Positas Valley.

ABAG's Executive Board has upheld their regional plan committee and will not review its earlier decision until new information is compiled from an air quality maintenance study or the county submits specific details for development of the rolling hills north of Livermore.

ABAG last year refused to put its imprimatur to a change in the county's general plan that calls for county development of the controversial valley, site of developer Harlan Geldermann's proposed New Town.

Supervisors' Chairman Fred Cooper at that time threatened to pull Alameda County out of the nine county, regional agency because of the action.

In upholding its regional committee, the executive board ruled it "will not re-examine the Las Positas decision," according to an ABAG representative.

ABAG will launch a six month "air quality maintenance" study this fall using computer models to analyze the source and eventual outfall of smog in the Bay Area.

The $50,000 study should start in September or October and will be finished around March, 1977.

With the exception of outlying areas in Sonoma and Solano Counties, the study encompass all of ABAG's jurisdiction, a according to the spokeswoman.

It is not the $400,000 study earlier requested by Cooper as a condition of granting county approval to the proposed "super sewer" pipeline planned by the Livermore - Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA).

It is instead "part of the very large Environmental Management Task Force (EMTF) program," conducted by ABAG under federal grants.

Tighter rules seen for burn permits

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — County government jumped on Pleasanton's now famous "Fallon House Fire" donnybrook yesterday, and as a result may make applications for burning permits more stringent.

If plans outlined by the board of supervisors are adopted, burning permits will have to be cleared through the County Fire Chief's Association.

The supervisors, as jocular as they were upset, also asked for a report from county public works director Herb Crowle outlining what state and local funds were committed to the historic house.

The Twin Valley Fire Training Academy inadvertently burned down the 123-year-old Jeremiah Fallon house Friday afternoon when they mistook it for another nearby building that was to be burned as part of a training exercise.

"Can you get us a report on that, Supervisor Murphy?", chided fellow supervisor Charles Santana, a former south county fireman.

"They had a fire drill on it," quipped Murphy.

The county's "legal and planning departments have files and files on that house," said board chairman Fred Cooper. "Maybe we could give the fire departments the files and let them work on those."

The Dublin Historical Preservation Association had commitments for some $30,000 toward moving and remodeling the old home.

Plans to build Ramada Inn told

PLEASANTON — Ramada Inns will build a two-story 152 - unit motel and restaurant complex on six acres south of Interstate 580 between Hopyard Road and the old Hopyard Road extension.

City Manager Bill Edgar has ruled that there is no need for an environmental impact report for the project, which is in agreement with both the zoning and the general plan designation for the site.

Anyone who wishes to appeal Edgar's decision that no EIR is required has 10 days in which to file an appeal after the legal publication of his findings May 28.

Incorporation favored

By the Lesher News Bureau
SIMS STAND

ALAMO — Fifth supervisorial district candidate Floyd Sims says he has changed his mind and is now in favor of incorporation of the San Ramon Valley.

"Recent growth in Alamo, Danville and San Ramon has changed my mind," Sims said recently.

"Most people who now live in Danville moved there because they liked that image," he said. "In the past five or six years, the entire community has changed."

"We need to limit growth now," he stated.

He said he does not agree with the argument that incorporation will not result in new taxes, "but I am willing to pay for local control."

The San Ramon Valley communities are in the fifth district, along with the East County and North Shore communities of Antioch and Pittsburg.

Coordinator named

GIERSCH SUPPORT

ANTIOCH — Fifth supervisorial district candidate Louise Giersch has announced that Dick Dyer, 1560 Brookside Drive, Danville, is her campaign coordinator for the San Ramon Valley.

Dyer said Ms. Giersch "has a proven track record and has pledged full time service with attention to the valley and East County needs."

The Giersch campaign also announced the former mayor of Antioch has received the endorsement of two county women's groups.

They are the Mt. Diablo District Business and Professional Womens' Clubs and the National Women's Political Caucus of Contra Costa.

PTA on propositions

The California State PTA Board of Managers has voted to support three ballot measures that will appear on the June 8 ballot.

Proposition 1 would provide for a $200 million bond issue to build local schools. This proposition would finance a new type of of school building aid program under which the state would enter into lease - purchase agreements with local school districts. The net effect of this plan would be to reduce the vote necessary to approve major local school construction programs from 2/3s to a simple majority.

The state would pay for the construction of a school and lease it to a school district, which would repay the full cost of the bond obligation to the state and then assume ownership of the structure.

Prop. 4 would authorize the state to issue $150 million in general obligation bonds to provide funds for major building construction, equipment and sites for California community colleges.

Prop. 5 would amend the Constitution to reduce from 2/3s to a simple majority the vote by the Legislature to impose taxes on banks, corporations, franchises and insurers.

Full-time supervisor?

Valerie Raymond, candidate for Alameda County Supervisor, First District, claimed incumbent Supervisor John Murphy has engaged in "deceptive practices" to convince voters that he devotes himself full-time to the supervisorial post.

In a press statement issued Tuesday, Raymond quoted Murphy as declaring in a ballot statement that representing voters of the First District is his sole occupation.

"However," Raymond said, "in his yearly statement of income which he is required to file at the County Courthouse in Oakland, he reported he received over $10,000 in real estate commissions from the Murphy Realty Company and between $1,000 and $10,000 in salary from Cooper McKenzie Murphy Insurance.

"Given these facts, how can he claim sole occupation is being our representative?" Raymond asked.

Correction on COVA dissidents

Mercer, LeClaire oppose cost

PLEASANTON — Council members Ken Mercer and Joyce LeClaire, not Frank Brandes and William Herlihy, wanted to drop the city's $1,000 worth of expenses for belonging to Congress of Valley Organizations last week.

The Times incorrectly tabbed Brandes and Herlihy, an error which Brandes took the trouble to point out.

There's a chance Pleasanton will drop out of COVA after the June meeting because Mayor Robert Philcox is skeptical about COVA's value. Philcox, who right now has the swing vote on the issue, said he wants to wait until COVA's meeting in June to determine whether he will agree to another year of city participation in COVA. At the June meeting members will talk about the future work of COVA. If Philcox thinks the agenda for the coming year looks worthwhile, he'll probably vote to for the city to keep its membership.

Mercer told The Times yesterday he may vote to keep membership in COVA, too, but it would depend on the coming agenda. COVA last year did a study on valley transportation which Mercer felt worthwhile and the current study on air pollution looks good, too, in his opinion.

But Zone 7 handles the water specialty and LAVWMA has sewers so it probably won't leave any environmental areas for COVA to research, said Mercer.

As far as needing COVA for valley - wide cooperation is concerned, Mercer felt that he might accomplish more by meeting individually with Livermore and VCSD officials. Local school districts have membership, but there are few issues in their baliwick and they don't participate much.

COVA's predescessor, the Valley Planning Committee, was formed so VCSD, Pleasanton and Livermore could have more voice in planning the unincorporated areas. Mercer felt that if some big issue in the unincorporated areas comes up, the local agencies could resurrect COVA as an ad hoc committee, but there is no need for each agency to spend $1,000 a year for a staff and paperwork.

Is this sour grapes because Pleasanton seems at odds with the majority of the VCSD board and Livemore City Council on planning issues, as some have suggested?

Mercer said he is not on bad terms with anyone in Livermore or VCSD. He joined the city council just last month.

He went to his first COVA meeting last month and was named chairman because it was Pleasanton's turn to have the chair. "The next day I learned that we are supposed to bring the director over to our city offices. I'm not opposed to that, if we decide to stay in COVA, but the work will have to be worthwhile," said Mercer.

Alameda County prods state for mental health funding

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — The threat of a Sacramento demonstration by the state's fifth largest county apparently got the results county supervisors were after.

The demonstration, tentatively scheduled for Monday, was called off when the Governor's office and state Department of Finance agreed to meet with county mental health officials, according to Board of Supervisors Chairman Fred Cooper.

State Assemblyman Floyd Mori of Pleasanton also organized a meeting between legislators and county officials that may have answered the threat.

Supervisors last month moved to demonstrate on the steps of the state capitol to protest what they called "arbitrary and unprecedented" cuts in state aid to mental health.

They followed their threat with a suit to force the state to restore first $1.2 million, then another $1.7 million cut from the county's allocation of "patient days" at state mental hospitals.

"The threat of a demonstration got their attention," said supervisor Joseph Bort when the announcement was made.

Now, according to Cooper, the two state agencies are preparing a report on the county's problems that is due this week.

County Mental Health Director Dr. Susan Mandel has charged that there are no long range plans to develop mental health systems in the state.

She has said that Alameda County is being used as a wedge to get state Health Department officials into the Governor's office.

The county, she says she was told, also was being used as "an example" both to bring other counties into line and to get into to the Governor's office.

Dear Customer,

For your family enjoyment we select the world's finest natural cheeses and meat products. To maintain the quality and taste of these fine natural products, we suggest the following care: Refrigerator storage requires a plastic wrap tightly sealed around cheeses against air. A tip from Holland to keep ends from drying and flavor loss is to smear a dab of butter on the cut end. Any mold growth can be cut off. For freezer storage up to 1 year, cheese requires tightly sealed plastic wrap and freezer foil to prevent freezer burn. Dry Italian salami should not be refrigerated even after cutting. The end should be plastic wrapped and salami kept in a cooi dry area. Our smoked ham is fully cooked and can be eaten cold or warmed in a 325° oven for 1½-2 hrs. Smoked ham needs air circulation and should never be plastic wrapped except over cut end. Ham can be frozen for 1 year if properly wrapped in freezer foil.

We want customers completely happy with their purchase, so therefore we guarantee your satisfaction by your money back or replacement of your product. We only ask that you please return the defective merchandise to us. We are a small family owned company trying to help the consumer stretch your grocery dollars by saving you up to 60% from the retail price. We service churches, food co-ops and clubs also. STUDENT AT Pleasanton Academy of Christian Education checks her work at scoring station. Though their is nongraded structure, students at primary, elementary, junior high and lower division high school levels are accepted.

Christian school hopeful

The Pleasanton Academy of Christian Education, which got off to a very tentative start with barely 20 students in temporary quarters, looks forward to a second year with upwards of 150 in expanded quarters.

Founded by the Pleasanton Assembly of God, the school is the latest Christian school to open in response to an ever - growing demand for alternative - types of educational environments.

Sanford Weldon, minister of education with the Assembly of God Church and principal of the school, says the school deemphasizes grade level and focuses on the individual needs of the child and his or her rate of achivement.

The school is strongly rooted in God and Country, this being everywhere self - evident in the Fairgrounds cafeteria where teachers and students alike where red, white and blue-motif dress and American flags are placed in the study quarters and on desks.

In addition to Weldon, who often can be found opening the school's mail and conducting business in the kitchen section of the cafeteria, the school has a supervisor, two "monitors" (equivalent to public school classroom teachers) and an average of six "para-professionals" (parents who come in to assist).

The current enrollment of 45 is pretty equally divided amongst primary, elementary, junior high and high school ages.

Weldon says the staff is gearing for 150 students next September. Just where the school will relocate is undetermined at present though Weldon confides that they are looking at a couple of sites in the Pleasanton area.

It has also been learned that at least one church is interested in the old post office building, which will be vacated in July when the Postal Service moves to spacious, new quarters at Santa Rita and Black.

Weldon notes that although the school was founded by the Assembly of God, all major faiths are represented in the student enrollment.

Of the 45, about five came from other Christian schools and the remainder primarily from Pleasanton, Dublin and Livermore.

Weldon describes the school as something of a learning diagnostic center, where the progress of students at school is positively reinforced at home.

Children work from lesson books or PACEs and must score 80 or above on anything they do before they advance. If this is not achieved, they do NOT get a "fail" score but, instead, receive an "Oops" slip and repeat the work.

The child gets a "congratulations" slip if he or she scores 80 or above. Parents are notified of all "Oops" or "congratulations" slips.

There are also forms (which are also sent home) that state the child needs to do more homework on one or more subject areas.

They must be signed by the parent and returned.

The school also utilizes demerits as a method of discipline and a form called "application for privileges."

"We want to program students for success," Weldon says, "not failure. We want them to get to know themselves by the work they've laid out for themselves to do."

As a culmination activity, the school will hold an awards banquet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the cafeteria.

JONATHAN OVERBY, at piano, is music director of Christian school located presently in cafeteria at County Fairgrounds. Choral music is major part of school's curriculum. School's axis is strongly geared to God and Country.

STUDENTS AT PLEASANTON Christian school brown bag-it and eat in same area where classes are held or can go outside on Fairgrounds lawn area. Many of students play board games while eating.

Grape ad bill up for action

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A bill that would allow the California Table Grape Growers Commission to spend $1.5 million a year more on advertising has reached the Senate floor.

The Senate Finance Committee approved the measure by Sen. George Zenovich, DFresno, that would increase the assessment limit to 43 cents per 100 pounds of grapes.

The current limit is 19 cents per 100 pounds.

Local miss wins regional teen-ager pageant

A smashing Pleasanton brunette, Barbara Fletcher, has become regional winner of the Miss California Teen-Ager Pageant, held at the Factory in Campbell recently.

Barbara, a 16-year-old Foothill High School junior, was one of 23 girls entered in the contest. Selection of the winner was based on appearance, judged on the modeling of long and street-length dresses, poise, personality and achievements based on scholastic records as well as community involvements.

"Barb," as she is called by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Fletcher and brother Dave of Castlewood, maintains a 4.0 average and has won merit awards in math and English, and most recently was a representative in the Poly Royal math contest. She is a varsity cheerleader, member of the pep club, tennis team and a student representative to the District's Graduation Requirement Task Force.

When asked by the judges of the contest to describe her greatest ambition in life, Barb replied spontaneously, "I most want to find inner happiness and contentment. I feel that attending college, as a learning and growing experience is essential to this goal. I hope to become a counselor or special education teacher, and evenlually would like a successful marriage and to raise happy and healthy children."

As winner, Barbara received a bouquet of roses and an all-expense paid trip to compete in the State Finals for the title of Miss California Teen-Ager. This contest, which promises to draw 90 girls from throughout the state, will take place July 7 to 10 at the Balboa Bay Club, Newport Beach. The winner there will compete in the National Grand Finals for the title of Miss American Teen-Ager.

The California State Pageant is the official preliminary to the Miss American Teen-Ager Pageant, now going into its seventeenth year as the nation's oldest teen contest. Last year the national finals were televised as a ninety minute entertainment special on network channels from the Fontainebleu Hotel in Miami, Florida. The prize list of the national pageant included among other things a Dodge car, $1,000 wardrobe, $1,000 Norwegian Blue Fox Pant Coat, Samsonite Luggage, Lucien Piccard watch worth $625, assortment of Remington beauty appliances, photographic portfolio — prizes and benefits that have passed the $10,000 mark.

A major feature of the prize list for the queen and her chaperone will be a seven day international goodwill tour through Mexico, Central America and the Carribbean, ending in competition for the title of "Miss American Teen-Ager." All expenses at the National competition plus additional prizes will be provided to "Miss California Teen-Ager."

"When you add the value of the state prizes to that of the $25,000 national contest list, this has to be the richest combined teenage purse in history," stated Ray Garra, president of the state pageant.

Utilization of the California State contest to benefit the American Cancer Society is another innovation of the pageant's operation and at present unique to Calif. only. Proceeds to ACS will come from the contest entry fees, special fund-raising requirements of the contestants themselves and other sponsorships produced through the pageant's efforts.

P.F.O. constructs heirloom quilt

The members of the Parent Faculty Organization of California High in San Ramon have constructed an heirloom quilt which promises to be the treasured possession of whomever happens to be its lucky winner.

Designed by Julia Bidmead and June Prentice, with the help of PFO President Sue Cramer, who encouraged parents, teachers and students to get involved in hand embroidering each square; their efforts has resulted in a bicentennial work of art.

Centered with the symbolic American eagle on a blue background, the squares show the 13 original colonies, interspersed among meaningful signs of our early settlers.

Large enough to fit a queen-size bed, the large white squares are all original designs, done in bright, harmonizing colors of beautiful crewel stitchery.

The face of Washington is seen between the memorable sayings of Patrick Henry and John Paul Jones. Minute men, muskets and cannons vie in color with the Indians and the Liberty Bell.

It is lined with a soft padding and backed with a unique blue and white Americana print. Although predominately blue and white, the touches of red, to complete its bicentennial feeling, are picked up with the colors in the squares and in the center banner which declares the years 1776 and 1976. The women did a comendable and professional job in its construction.

The quilt will be on display in several shopping areas throughout Dublin all this week. Look for it at Lucky's, Mervyn's and Safeway. Donation of tickets at "two for one dollar" will be on sale.

The drawing will be held on June 5, at 3 p.m. at the Shannon Community Center in Dublin, when the PFO group will be hostessing a luncheon during the Neighborhood Arts and Crafts Show scheduled at the center for June 4 and 5.

All proceeds from the sales and the luncheon will go to benefit the students at the High School. For more information about the quilt, you may call the high school offices, 828-9311.

Patchwork Parade

Three fetching models in the "Patchwork Parade" will be Meredith Tibbey and her daughters Jennifer, two, and Kristine, five, (left).

The mother daughter home-sewn fashion show is being planned by members of the United Presbyterian Community Church for Saturday, June 5, 11:30 a.m. in the social hall.

The cost is $1.25 for adults and 75 cents for children under 12, plus one salad per family. Those bringing Jello are asked to provide their own thermal containers. All else will be furnished.

Chairpersons for the event are Betty Fuller, general chairman; Ben Stunkel, commentator; Karen Albertson, fashion coordinator; Sally Moore, decorations; Barbara Guest, food; Joan LeFevre, tickets; Nancy Chester and Barbara Hall, publicity and Connie Roney, programs.

For tickets or more information, call 443-9649 or 846-4436.

Murphy versus the field June 8

The June 8 balloting for Alameda County's First Supervisorial District emerges as a question of the challenger's competency, rather than a serious test of John Murphy's incumbency.

That is not however what those challengers have been telling us for these many weeks, and it is one of the more evident gaps in all that campaigning. We grow tired of candidates who have nothing more to say than "I am running for this office because Murphy has failed to ..."

If even one of them had produced something solid, some documented proof of abuse of that office, then the voters, and the press, would have a clear guideline leading to that June 8 ballot. But the lament has rather been a litany of "Murphy's failure to communicate" and "Murphy not being full - time on the job." If that is all that's wrong with the man after 16 years in office then either the incumbent is better than we thought, or else his detractors have not done their homework.

This newspaper has found Supervisor Murphy something less than perfect, and we have said so. (The question of his dual - residency that was revealed and thoroughly explored by The Times has been the one specific "charge" levied against the incumbent. But even that proved no challenge to his right to hold office.)

There are two levels to balloting for a supervisorial post. By any measure, Murphy is a cinch to survive the June test and — most likely — to be carried to a November runoff by the best of those challengers.

The issue before us right now is not "How adequate has Murphy's representation been?", but rather, "Which of the challengers offers assurance of something better?" It is that question which may be answered on June 8.

And it is after we get past the primary round that The Times will study the two remaining candidates, and offer our own recommendation as a prelude to the November runoff.

MIKE ZAMPA

Diane's real victory

Friends are reluctant to talk about it, says Diane Dunbar. In private, expressions of sympathy still spill from their mouths. But they can't face the former Olympic hopeful and point up the face she's now an Olympic never-was.

It's been nearly two weeks since Pleasanton's gymnastics sensation failed to qualify for the American women's team at the Olympic Trials in Los Angeles. Diane says she had a good cry with her coach on the final night when the U.S. team was announced.

And alone in bed at night she has to fight off fits of melancholy.

Most of the time, though, she handles the disappointment well. The Summer Olympics in Montreal have been her goal for years. In the qualifying she placed ninth all-around in a field of 26 competitors. Only six, however, were selected for the American team.

Observers equated the outcome with defeat. Befitting the character of an indefatigable 17-year-old, Diane doesn't see it that way.

To casual acquaintances who learned of her exploits solely through rose - colored press clippings, she was an automatic Olympic qualifier. They viewed her failure as shocking.

Diane realized, however that it would take a rare combination of physical and mental prowess, and no small amount of luck, to pull off her dream.

When she didn't, she was philosophical.

"This doesn't mean I'm defeated," says Diane, who vowed to continue her gymnastics career the day after Los Angeles. "There are so many good times behind me, and so many still to come.

"I've nothing to be ashamed of because I did the best I could.

"I don't feel that bad," Diane said last week. "I get so much out of the sport — the work, the trips. I went back to my gym two days after the Trials, and I found out that everything's the same."

Which all gives the Diane Dunbar story a tinge of Greek Tragedy. Perhaps there is nothing tragic where games are concerned. But hearken back to eighth grade English class, and recall the heroes and heroines of Euripides and Aeschylus. They suffered the archetypical fall from power, yet redeemed themselves in the last paragraph with new insight on the human condition. Even Oedipus saw the light after poking his eyes out.

Well no one can say Diane Dunbar has tumbled very far. She is still the ninth best female gymnast in America today. But at the very moment of her disappointment she discovered something greater than Olympic prestige and international adulation. She reaffirmed her love affair with sport.

Diane won't curse all of the hours she spent training, or the dinners of limp lettuce and water. In fact she's going right back to the old routine, simply because she enjoys it more than anything.

The Montreal Games aside, maybe Diane is the biggest winner. Few of us will ever experience anything like her fanatic devotion to gymnastics.

Even fewer will have the courage to grasp at Olympian goals.

"The Olympics were my goal," Diane stresses. "But maybe it wasn't making the team, but all the steps that led up to it — the work, the trips — that was so great. If I never make the Olympics, I'll never regret all the time I spent."

At one point Diane considered retirement from her sport. But that was before the Trials, when it appeared failure to qualify would be too overwhelming.

It hasn't been, she says, so Diane Dunbar carries on. She's preparing to leave for the Olympic Training Camp next month in New York. Ten American women are invited in case of emergency. Too attend the camp is a privilege. At least that's what is says here.

Fleeting honor isn't for Diane, however. She's competed in four international competitions, winning a couple of times. She's figured in every major American championship for the past three years. It's getting difficult to impress her.

She leaves for New York not as a privileged gymnast, but as an obligated one. The sport has given her everything, Diane says. The least she can do in repayment is accept her country's invitation.

round the town

"What - n - hell is a LAVWMA and has anybody ever actually caught one?"

That is the kind of question we have been getting this season. It is enough to stir any journalist worth his pencil to greater heights.

In pursuit of the great LAVWMA story, I turned first to that distinguished authority on all things sewer, Mr. I.M. Smelly. (Footnote — Mr. Smelly is best remembered as the VCSD meter reader who was involved in that Missing Million Gallons affair; he later went on to law school, and then returned to become the assistant to the Assistant City Attorney. Mrs. Smelly is employed as a Smog Sniffer for the Air Pollution Board's Livermore station.)

THE TIMES — Mr. Smelly we receive many questions regarding LAVWMA and other great issues confronting us in this Bicentennial Year. Do you think this is typical?

SMELLY — What is the meaning of life? What is a LAVWMA? People are into all kinds of kinky things this year. I can't answer for the kooks of this world.

THE TIMES — Are you suggesting there is danger here of people going overboard on this thing?

SMELLY — Danger? Now that you mention it, we had an assistant city engineer who chased a LAVWMA right into Lake L'Effluent. Poor devil was never heard from again ... although I understand somebody keeps picking up his check every payday.

THE TIMES — Is there any truth to the rumor that LAVWMA and SUPER SEWER LINE may team up for a prime time show? I understand CBS might buy it to compete with SONNY & CHER.

SMELLY — You'll have to talk to the city manager's office on that. We assistants to the Assistant City Attorney are not allowed to comment on controversial matters. The mayor doesn't want us scaring hell out of people.

THE TIMES — But people are already shook up, Mr. Smelly. They hear talk of a $30 million contract for this LAVWMA - SUPER SEWER hookup. What's it for and where are they going?

SMELLY — What is the meaning of money? Who's really in charge? I get so tired of these same stupid questions, day after day. You'd think the people would be tickled pink to lay out $30 million if it meant making LAVWMA and SUPER SEWER comfortable for the rest of their lives. After all, they could go on welfare, you know.

THE TIMES — Do you mean that if LAVWMA and SUPER SEWER get together for this trip to the Bay, that will mean the end for all time to this Valley's worries?

SMELLY — Yes, at least for this year. It will also make Fremont happy, because they figure on LAVWMA and SUPER SEWER packing all those OLD SALTS with them, and what more can we do in this life than make Fremont happy?

THE TIMES — You're saying we lay out $30 million this year to make Fremont happy? But what about next year? Aren't they bound by the reserve clause?

SMELLY — Heavens to chlorine no! Next year the bidding starts all over, and there is talk that LAVWMA may sign up with EPA for a brand new act that will also star CARCINOGENICS and the AWFUL ASPHALTS. If you think SUPER SEWER cost a bundle, wait until until you see that 1977 contract!

THE TIMES — I don't understand how these things keep building and building. Just when we believe the Valley has a winning team, along comes some trouble - maker with new demands for millions more. Where is it all going to end?

SMELLY — Where is San Francisco? What is the meaning of politics? Sometimes I think all the world's burdens are thrust on the assistant to the Assistant City Attorney.

THE TIMES — I didn't mean to upset you, Mr. Smelly. It's just that taxpayers are wondering what it's all about. Some people are even beginning to lose faith in ACRONYMS.

SMELLY — Lose faith in ACRONYMS!! Are the people crazy? Where would we be today without LAVWMA and EIR? ... how could we go on if there were no ABAG, no BASSA, and not even a VCSD??

THE TIMES — Yeah, without them there would probably be a lot of people out of a job. Including all the assistants to the Assistant City Attorneys.

SMELLY — Now you're beginning to understand what life is all about, down here in SEWER CITY.

HINDSIGHT/FORESIGHT

Football lights

Information gained Friday has somewhat changed this writer's outlook on the proposed lighting and placing of bleachers at Foothill High School.

But the entire issue of providing athletic facilities, in this instance lighted football fields, should not realistically be a high priority when measured against the total needs of both the student and adult community.

Let's face it, a lighted field may be used 10 times during the entire year for football, track and student gatherings.

Is the total community getting some use out of such a facility? After all, funding for a sizable portion of the project comes from community services taxes.

California High School students in San Ramon are also seeking improved athletic facilities. With this firmly in mind, approximately 500 marched on Supt. Allan Petersdorf's office at the San Ramon Valley Unified School District headquarters Monday, to present petitions asking for improved facilities.

At present, Cal High students practice and play athletic contests at a variety of facilities in the valley, including Neil Armstrong School (a K-6 school), Dublin High and San Ramon High.

The school now has its first senior class, albeit a small group of approximately 70. Foothill will have its first senior class this fall and has played its football games at both Amador and Dublin (both of whom have had lights for a number of years).

A few words about Dublin High. The Gaels have had a lighted facility since 1969 or since the second year of their existence.

The Dublin bleachers-lights project came about as the result of a very active boosters club and student body that sold script. The student body raised the funds for lights, an approximate cost of $14,500 as current principal Bob Hagler recalls.

The district bought the bleachers, an approximate expenditure of $25 to $30,000. Poles reportedly were donated by P.G. and E. The principal costs, then, were installation of the lights and the wiring.

The memorandum forwarded to the Amador school district board from Doug Rose, assistant superintendent for business services, did not fully explain the total uses of the community services tax portion of the project.

Nor did it explain that the Foothill High Boosters part is to seek non-tax funds for the bleachers and lighting. The boosters reportedly are exploring many different avenues in tandem with students to finance these two key parts of the project.

If this be absolutely correct, then we say more power to the Foothill High community ... and may we be among those to contribute!

Rose has verified, though, that up to $50,000 generated from the community service tax (which will generate approximately $100,000 total for 1976-77) will go to pay for plans and specifications being drawn up, fencing, additional parking, finishing of the running track and field event pits, and tennis courts.

This writer believes this broader use of the funds makes it a worthwhile project — allows more potential use of the facilities by a wider range of community members.

Sole use of the funds (from the community service tax) for just a lighted football field, as we have stated before, would not be appropriate.

Rose says that the community service tax can be used to pay for use of existing facilities (such as multi-purpose rooms) or those areas qualified for use under the Civic Center Act. Also, capital improvements.

As Rose understands it, such activities as speakers programs or underwriting of cultural events would not be included.

While it will be interesting to see what kind of response the parents and students at Foothill High and Cal High get in their quest for a lighted football field and better athletic facilities, it will be even more interesting to see how voters can separate these activities from the Amador school district's quest for a revenue increase.

They are really two separate issues (athletic facilities, tax measures) and the timing is extremely unfortunate.

Campaign signs

Editor, The Times:

Where are my father's signs? One day they are visible, the next day they are no where in sight. Why are my father's signs being taken down? Who is doing this? I really don't understand the disappearence of just my father's signs. They were not posted illegal, in fact some were in clusters with other candidates. Maybe you could help to explain to me why.

Prompt firemen

Editor, The Times:

I wish to take this opportunity to express my deep appreciation to the men of the Pleasanton Fire Department for their prompt and efficient response to the fire on my property on First Street Friday, May 21.

Without their immediate action, the fire on my grounds would have spread rapidly to the barns and sheds which house my farming equipment and cars.

Again, my thanks for a job well done!

Campaign controls

It's hard to understand what all the shouting is about when people complain that Proposition 9, the campaign reporting law, is too cumbersome to administer.

If any extra paperwork is worth its weight in gold, it's Proposition 9. It's interesting to note that most of the complainers about Proposition 9's so - called "difficulty to administer" have been politicians subject to the act.

From a reporter's standpoint, Proposition 9 has been a dream. Good reporters always try to dig into campaign organizations to see who is backing whom. Birds of a feather do flock together. A candidate who reports contributions from many developers and a utility chief or two may be able to make up his or her own mind on growth issues, but there must be some reason why all those folks cared enough about him or her to contribute to the campaingn.

Voters who see realtors as builders of the community will like their backing of that candidates and vote for him or her and people with the opposite view will probably will shop around for another candidate on the list. In voting, the more information available, the better. Whoever thought up Proposition 9 deserves a pat on the back from us reporters and the voters.

CALIFORNIA JUSTICE

Violent crime

(Third of a three-part "reader commentary.")
By George Nicholson

Despite billions of dollars spent on crime control in recent years, crime rates continue to skyrocket. Crime, particularly violent crime, has become so commonplace that few among us have not been personally affected. High security apartment buildings and walled, fortress-like communities stand as monuments to a nation with crime out of control.

The affluent can sometimes afford to buy safety for a price. The less affluent cannot, and are, therefore, fair game for criminals. Rich and poor alike have suffered loss of individual freedoms due to the ever-present threat of crime.

Women who live in central cities are told not to carry purses, to stay inside at night, not to use certain public parks, and to otherwise curb their liberty and freedom of movement for fear of being victimized by crime. The law-abiding are gradually becoming prisoners in their own homes. Government has failed to fulfill its primary role. It has failed to provide personal safety and assure domestic tranquility.

Almost forty years ago, United States Supreme Court Justice Benjamin Cardozo, one of the wisest and most articulate jurists ever to occupy a seat on that bench, recognized the dangerous potential which lay ahead. He then wrote, "Justice though due the accused is due the accuser also. The concept of fairness must not be strained till it is narrowed to a filament. We are to keep the balance true." Clearly, both the high court he formerly sat on, as well as the California Supreme Court, have failed to honor this call to fairness.

In the decade just past, which represents about five percent of our national constitutional history, and about ten percent of our local constitutional history, the United States and California Supreme Courts have cast out large numbers of criminal laws, practices and traditions, formerly well-established and based not only on standards acceptable when each constitution was adopted, but rooted in centuries of history.

It is no wonder then, that there is criticism by the lay public when members of these courts assume the role of legislators, contrary to the separation of powers mandate in the constitution they are sworn to uphold. This criticism becomes censure when voiced by trial court judges and elected officials as well.

In 1972, Judges S.C. Masterson and Norman A. Gregg, of the Contra Costa County Superior Court, and Judge Stanley K. Lawson of the Monterey County Superior Court, with a collective judicial experience of almost sixty years, jointly accused the California Supreme Court of "judicial arrogance of the highest order," for declaring the death penalty unconstitutional.

The voters were similarly outraged. In short order, an initiative petition was circulated to allow restoration of the death penalty. More than 500,000 persons signed it, and on November 7, 1972, the electorate overwhelmingly voted, in effect, to reverse the Court's decision.

For years, appellate courts have ruled that only unreasonable searches and seizures were prohibited, and declared the purpose of the exclusionary rule to be deterrence of such conduct. Strangely enough, however, the California Supreme Court upheld the so-called exclusionary rule and ordered evidence suppressed in February, 1976, which was obtained by law enforcement conduct the court characterized as commendable.

The modern application of the exclusionary rule turns on whether a police officer has violated a "reasonable expectation of privacy." If he has, the evidence is suppressed. Whose reasonable expectation of privacy is controlling? None other than the criminal who hid the evidence, of course. What has been some of the result of the judicial legislation adopting this rule? One example deals with garbage cans. In 1969, California Supreme Court declared a criminal who deposits contraband in his garbage can abandons it only as to the garbage man, and not as to a rummaging police officer who may have been warned by neighbors that criminal misconduct is going on next door. After this decision was rendered, police learned contraband was in certain garbage cans placed at a street curb for pickup.

In an attempt to comply with the decision just mentioned, the police had the garbage man empty the well of his truck, pick up the garbage, and stop down the street to allow inspection. Contraband was found and the defendants charged. They moved to suppress the evidence, and the trial judge agreed. The Court of Appeal reversed, declaring the California Supreme Court's "garbage can thinking" was silly, and ruled that it didn't apply anyway, because these defendants could have had no reasonable expectation of privacy as to garbage cans left at a street curb.

Not to be outdone, the California Supreme Court reversed the Court of Appeal and suppressed the evidence, saying the defendants had a reasonable expectation of privacy and that expectation extended "until the trash had lost its identity and meaning by becoming part of a large conglomeration of trash elsewhere." This means, effectively, when it has lost its value as evidence. The court went on to say, "Half-truths leading to rumor and gossip may readily flow from an attempt to 'read' the contents of another's trash" and should not be allowed.

The most recent excesses of the California Supreme Court occurred in two cases decided in early 1976. In one case, though provided for by statute, the Court virtually prohibited the prosecution from confronting an accused in trial with prior felony convictions, even those felony convictions which bear on veracity and credibility. In the second case, the Court joined a small minority of five states and rejected a United States Supreme Court decision followed in 33 states, many with large and sophisticated populations.

By its decision in the latter case, the California Supreme Court precluded the prosecution from confronting a perjurous accused in trial with the accused's prior inconsistent statements, if the statement was taken in violation of the suspect's Miranda rights, no matter how trivial the violation may have been. By both these decisions, an accused is accorded a "false aura of veracity."

The recurring question is simply this, why are nine United States Supreme Court Justices and seven California Supreme Court Justices, a total of sixteen men, able to "pass" new laws and redefine existing ones without accountability to voters? The basic reason is the good-faith expectation that the courts will perform their function of interpreting laws and refrain from using the consititution as a tool for social changes desired by simple court majorities.

It seems the courts, particularly the California Supreme Court, have forgotten the telling words of Chief Justice John Marshall and Justice Cardozo. Chief Justice Marshall, in 1824, said, "Judicial power is never exercised for the purpose of giving effect to the will of the judge; always for the purpose of giving effect to the will of the legislature; or in other words, to the will of law."

The power to change the law by judicial fiat is the power to rule. It is time the American People recognized this and became actively involved in the politics of law. As the courts currently operate, there is often judicial legislation without representation. More interest should be taken in judicial appointments made by the executive and in those judicial elections still available. Judges and aspiring judges should be asked whether they will follow the law and leave changes to elected legislators. If they answer negatively, they are unfit for judicial service. Judicial restraint must become the order of the day if the Legislature is to begin to restore public justice by the adoption of new and innovative laws capable of controlling violent crimes.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

When you don't have a five-card suit you are likely to have to make a decision as to what to open. There are no standard American rules here. If you don't think so just look at any two books and try to find any hard and fast rules — much less identical hard and fast rules.

There is one place where experts do agree. With today's South hand you open one heart — not one spade. If you open one spade and partner holds four hearts you may lose the suit. If you open one heart he can respond one spade conveniently.

South's heart opening gives him a second bidding problem after the two-club response. He solves it by bidding three clubs. North rebids three diamonds and South goes to three notrump.

The same contract might well be reached on any line of bidding. It plays nicely and simply. South has to go after club and since they break 3-2 he has nine easy tricks.

Ask the Jacobys

A California reader picked up:
♠ K J 8 3 ♥ 7 1 3 ♦ A K 9 8 6 ♣ A.

He opened one diamond, partner bid one heart, he bid one spade and partner three hearts. Then our correspondent bid four clubs and asks, "Did I make a bad bid?"

The answer is "Yes, you did." His bid should have been either four hearts or four diamonds.

Busy day for muzzle loaders

Charlie Litz

BOB KELLER IS INTERESTED in getting a shoot organized for muzzle loaders. The Livermore - Pleasanton Rod and Gun Club's running deer target would provide the site. If you would enjoy this for a change, call Bob at 447-8084 for details.

By the way, be sure and clean that smoke pole after a day's shoot, because some brands of caps are corrosive.

BOB TANDY REPORTS salmon fishing out around the Farallones has been on the upswing lately. Bob and his party came home with a limit each. He said they had good luck about a mile from the north end of the islands (if you're metric, that's about 1.609 kilometers). So you may want to try Bob's favorite fishing spot.

REMEMBER, NIGHT SHOOTING out at the Livermore - Pleasanton Rod and Gun Club will start Tuesday evening, June 1. Trap ranges under lights, and skeet range open until dark. From 6:30 p.m. to closing, hope to see you out there.

THE DEPARTMENT OF FISH AND GAME (DFG), studying the elusive and secretive mountain lion in the rugged coastal mountains of Monterey county, received unexpected help the other day when a cougar came down from the hills and presented itself for study, so to speak.

DFG capture experts, alerted by the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, found the cat holed up beneath a house under construction in Pebble Beach, 20 miles or so northwest of the area where the department has spent two years intensively studying cougars.

While Pacific Grove police kept a rapidly building crowd of the curious a safe distance away, capture specialist Mike Fromhold, armed with a dart gun, crawled under the house and immobilized the lion with a shot from 30 or 40 Feet away.

Larry Sitton, assistant wildlife manager - biologist who does the field work for the study, said the lion fortunately passed out near an air vent and team members simply removed the vent cover and eased out the 90-pound animal. The lion was removed to SPCA quarters where it was placed in a cage, covered with a space blanket and permitted to recover slowly.

Meanwhile, the team confirmed its weight estimate by weighing the lion on a bathroom scale, measured it, examined it for age and general condition and fitted it with a radio telemetry collar so that its movements could be followed.

Bob Coulter, a Monterey veterinarian, supervised the operation. Blood samples were taken and the specimens were shipped to investigators doing parallel studies of hormone levels, blood parasites and bubonic plague among wildlife.

Sitton said that the lion was in good condition. Its age was estimated at 2 to 3 years.

After arrangements were made with the U.S. Forest Service, the lion was loaded into a truck, transported down the coast and released in a remote site on Los Padres National Forest.

Sitton's wife, Sue, a biologist working as an assistant on the project, said the lion moved out of its cage, looked at its captors, hissed a few times and wandered off down a game trail to disappear over the brow of a hill

A report on the four - and - a - half - year study of the lion in California recommended that the moratorium on sport hunting of lions be extended for another year while its management plan is being completed.

The state legislature established the moratorium in 1971 and directed the DFG to study lion populations to "ascertain the quantity of mountain lions in the state and to determine the best methods of providing sound management of this resource."

After a statewide survey was completed three years ago, the DFG tentatively estimated the state's cougar population at approximately 2,400 animals. A second phase of the study was conducted over 175 square miles of Coast Range in Monterey county to determine as precisely as possible the total lion population and the animal's range requirements.

This was accomplished by capturing and fitting a total of 14 mountain lions with radio collars and monitoring their movements. On the basis of the study, the DFG states it is "apparent that the status of the mountain lion is good and it is not threatened with extinction."

Meanwhile, the DFG treed, captured, collared and released another young male lion in Tulare county where a movement and density study of the species is under way. A third cougar, also a male 2 or 3 years old, was tagged and released east of McCloud, Siskiyou county, after being captured southwest of Redding

MOST STREAMS ARE EXPECTED to be low and clear — at midsummer flow conditions — for the opening Saturday, May 29, of the coastal and northwest trout and salmon.

In most areas, particularly on the north coast, anglers should find conditions better for the opener than was the case last year.

Jones to head MV cagers

Monte Vista High School basketball takes on the look of a family reunion after the San Ramon Valley Unified School District's approval of the appointment of Richard Jones as boys varsity coach Monday.

Jones, rumored to be in line for the job since his predecessor Gary Yates announced his resignation, has a son, junior guard Kevin, on the Mustang basketball team. In addition, his niece, Linda Silva, plays for the MV girls squad.

Adding to the athletic family tree, Linda's brother Mark is a senior on the North Coast Section tourney - bound Mustang baseball, a club Jones is currently assisting coach Georg Cockerton with.

The sometimes touchy question of coaching a relative doesn't bother Jones as much as other aspects of the Monte Vista position.

"I've coached Kevin in baseball, in Babe Ruth league before and this year at Monte Vista and it hasn't been any problem," he said. "In fact, it's been very rewarding, probably because of our personalities."

The long-time East Bay resident added, "I would never have persued the job if I didn't think it would work out Kevin didn't push me to take the job — but he wanted me too."

But while the family ties may make interesting reading, Jones biggest problem is the lack of an SRVUSD teaching job.

Since no positions opened up at Monte Vista this year, Jones got only the coaching job and will continue to teach physical education at El Cerrito High School, where he compiled a 155-83 nine-year record (including one season as girls coach).

Although it would mean a forfeiture of seniority that would cost him $3000 per year in salary, Jones would welcome full-time employment in Alamo, where he has lived for two years.

"I don't think that the situation is all that good now," he said. "It's ideal to have some one from inside the school.

"I haven't even found out about budgets, schedules or equipment yet."

Jones believes his first task as Monte Vista coach is to sell basketball to the community.

"You've got to get participation," he explained. "You have to have kids who are interested in playing basketball for Monte Vista."

Jones admits that Monte Vista will be an entirely different situation from El Cerrito.

"It's going to be a challenge to get the kids interested. In town, you have to kick them out of the gym or they'd stay there all night."

Nicknamed "Red" for obvious reasons, Jones dislikes coaches who run their players into the ground in the name of toughness.

"I hate to have players be glad that practice is over," he said in the shade of the first base dugout at Diablo Valley College, where MV opens the NCS play-offs Friday against Mt. Diablo. "My conditioning is all part of drills and shooting exercises."

At El Cerrito he said, "We'd try to collect the balls at the end of practice and kids would say, 'Oh, coach, can't we shoot a little longer?' Hopefully that will happen at Monte Vista."

Although not predicting immediate success, Jones is confident that MV will someday have an EBAL championship banner to hang in the gym alongside the recently won baseball flag.

"These things go in cycles," he said, referring to league - wide balances of talent. "If you take eight schools with similar ethnic make-up and population and you don't win for several years, then the coach hasn't done his job." Pointing to Bob DeVincenzi, Ken Krey and Steve Lykins as among the Mustangs' top returnees, Jones laborated, saying, "If a kid doesn't get confidence, he'll never exploit the talent he has.

"If I can make a guy feel he's doing something right, I'll be doing my job."

Jones, 39, was born in Merced but moved to the Bay Area at age four. He attended Acalanes High School and East Contra Costa Junior College (now DVC) before signing with the Detroit Tigers organization.

After a year of class A ball at Decatur, Illiois, Jones returned, sans collegiate eligibility, to San Francisco State, where he earned his degree. He coached the original Lamorinda T-birds Pop Warner football team while in college (a club that later became the San Ramon T-birds).

After teaching P.E. at a Richmond junior high school, he went to El Cerrito in 1965 as a football and baseball assistant before taking over as head basketball coach in 1968. In eight years, his boys teams won 20 or more games five times and took the NCS title in 1975.

His most gratifying year came in his second season when the Gauchos, 8-15 the year before, won the Alameda County Athletic Leagup title with a 23-8 mark.

Lori Larson goes for ball in win yesterday

Larson gains first position

Lori Larson decided she didn't want to finish second again and took a giant step towards achieving that wish yesterday.

The Livermore High School junior, who finished second in the East Bay Athletic League girls' tennis tournament last season, won the first-seeded position for Friday's EBAL tournament by defeating Dana Sorem of Granada, 6-0, 6-0 on the Matadors' courts.

The match was a make-up of a previous one and helped the Cowboys top Granada, 4-3. The rest of the matches in the tilt were played two weeks ago.

Both girls were undefeated going into the match, so the winner was automatically given the top spot at the tournament.

"I do not feel I played that well," the modest Lori said. "My serving wasn't really that good."

But apparently good enough to win.

Despite the defeat, Sorem had nothing to be ashamed of. Only a sophomore, she has two more years in which to reach the top of the EBAL tennis ladder.

Livermore ended the EBAL round - robin season with a 12-2 record, good enough for second place behind San Ramon.

Cubs struggle but Moore hot

Bob Moore continued his spectacular hitting, raising his average to .593, but the Tri-Valley Cubs lost three of their four games in San Francsico over the weekend.

Playing at Big Rec Park Saturday, the Cubs split a doubleheader with the all-Japanese San Francisco Hawks.

Losing the first game, 12-3, despite a trio of hits by Moore, Tri-Valley came back to take the nightcap, 2-1, on the three-hit pitching of Ed Kukihiko.

The Cubs scored the winning run in the last of the final inning. Jim Florence led off with a triple and scored on a grounder to short by Steve Krekel. Despite the fact that the Hawks had drawn in their infield, Florence beat the throw to the plate.

Sunday was a bleak one for Tri-Valley, as they dropped a pair to the defending Northern California Baseball Association champs, the International Order of Foresters, 12-5 and 10-5.

Youth programs requested

DANVILLE — The local police service district is gearing-up efforts to discourage congregations of youths on downtown streets this summer.

Members of the P-2 police service district discussed strategy with local police officers last week.

Initially, summer recreation programs will be spread throughout the San Ramon Valley so that youths will not congregate in any one spot, said Tom Hansen of the San Ramon Valley Community Center.

"In the past, there have been problems with youths "hanging out" on Love Lane adjacent to the Danville center, and in front of local stores.

Police district members told sheriff's officers present they think patrolmen should periodically cruise downtown Danville to discourage large groups from gathering, especially near the community center

Lab employes get right to unionize

An amendment to the Energy Research and Development Act passed Thursday by the U.S. House of Representatives gives Lawrence Livermore Laboratory's nearly 6,000 employes the right to organize and bargain collectively.

The amendment states that no funds can be appropriate to the lab for rpsearch, services or material conducted or supplied by the lab to ERDA unless the contract specifically provides lab employes impartial griveance procedures, the right to self organize and form labor organizations to bargain collectively.

The amendment was added to the ERDA Authorization Act by Rep. Fortney H. (Pete) Stark to give lab employes "the same equitable organizing and bargaining rights" accorded workers at other federally funded ERDA facilities.

In reacting to the amendment, LLL Deputy Director Duane Sewell noted that LLL does have "clear-cut labor - management procedures that are consistent with those used statewide University of California under the laws of California relating to state institutions."

Sewell said the lab has "grievance and administrative appeals procedures that are published and well-known."

He noted that the act would not affect LLL until October 1, 1977 and said it therefore would have "no immediate impact on our present policies."

The act also allows employes the right to refrain from taking part in collective bargaining or other labor organizing activities.

Granada turns back clock

LIVERMORE — The Fifties are back again, complete with greasy - haired rock'n'roll stars and teenyboppers wearing oxfords and ponytails.

Where? At Granada High School, May 27 - 28 and June 4 - 5, when 100 students revive the big Fifties musical, "Bye, Bye, Birdie."

An obvious takeoff on the Elvis phenomenon, "Birdie" is about a dumb but sexy rock star, Conrad Birdie (Leonard Barger) who has to go into the army.

Birdie's agent, Albert Peterson (Mark Schroepfer), decides to promote the singer's sendoff by having him plant a goodbye kiss on one of his fans, who turns out to be Kim McAfee (Kris Stasko) — much to the chagrin of Kim's boyfriend, the wimpy Hugo Peabody (Bob Faulkenrath.)

Meanwhile, Albert's dynamic girlfriend, Rosie (Robin Fisher) is pressuring him to give up show biz and get married; Albert's mother goes into a martyr act; and the story builds to an outrageous climax.

The Granada cast are equipped with oxfords from Mom's closet (we're not giving away any names), full - skirted dresses from the attic, earnest imitations of ponytails and a lot of spirit.

It's the first time they've attempted to stage such an ambitious Broadway - type production, from which only a few scenes have been cut.

The school band and chorus are supporting the production. Five teachers have been working on it since April with their students: Linda Williams, drama teacher, assisted by Steve Byrne, is general director; Barbara peck and Anne Krummes, physical education teachers, are doing the choreography; Jim Brockman is directing the choir and Ted Spilman directs the orchestra.

The students raised all funds themselves to pay for the sets andcostumes — except for the many items donated by enthusiastic parents who remember when.

art at 8 p.m Tickets are $1.50 for children under 12 and students with student body card; $1.75 for senior citizens and students without student body card; $2.50 for adults. Tickets can be reserved by calling 443 - 5000, ext. 59.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

American soldiers during the Revolution were lucky to get any clothing at all. Aside from militiamen, uniforms were non-existent. Washington, recognizing the practical attire of the riflemen, tried to have the hunting shirt adopted as uniform, but Congress took no action. It was not until October, 1779, The World Almanac recalls, that blue was adopted as the official Army uniform.

KNOW YOUR FOOD

YOUR FAMILY NEEDS ALL 4 BASIC FOODS DAILY

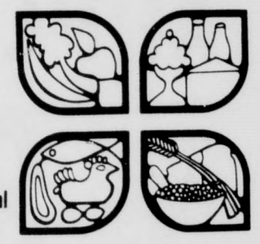
2. Fruits and Vegetables
3. Dairy Products
4. Bread, Cereal Products



MEAT GROUP

Principal nutrients in food are proteins (amino acids), fats, carbohydrates (sugars and starches), vitamins, minerals and water. Protein is made up of amino acids, which are put together as important building blocks of body tissues. The main structural units of the body are the many different protein molecules that the body makes from the amino acids it has obtained from the proteins of foods.

Major sources of protein are the Meat Group and its alternates. Foods included are: beef; veal; lamb; pork; variety meats, such as liver, heart, kidney; poultry; eggs; fish and shellfish; alternates — dry beans, dry peas, lentils, nuts, peanuts and peanut butter. Foods in the Meat Group contribute the protein, which is needed for the repair of body tissues — muscle, organs, blood, skin and hair. These foods also provide iron, thiamine, riboflavin and niacin.

Two or more servings of protein foods should be eaten every day. Count as 1 serving: 2 to 3 ounces (not including bone weight) cooked lean meat, poultry or fish. Count as alternates for 1 serving of meat, poultry or fish: 2 eggs; 1 cup cooked dry beans, dry peas or lentils; or 4 tablespoons of peanut butter.

Animal proteins are considered high quality while proteins from vegetables, grains and nuts are generally considered lesser quality. This lesser quality can be upgraded so that sufficient quantity of all essential amino acids is provided to the body. This can be done by combining a little animal protein with the lesser quality protein. For example: dry beans with cheese or a little meat; peanut butter sandwich with a glass of milk. However, in proper combinations, lesser quality proteins can be used as the only protein source. For example, beans with corn tortillas.

Foreshortened franks: Such a deal!

Who cares about double - digit inflation when the price of a succulent hot dog has been slashed from 65 to 45 cents at East Bay Regional Park District concession stands?

To be sure, the length of the franks has been slashed from eight to six inches.

But Stan Smith, Park District revenue operations manager, known to his intimates as "Straight Shooter Stan," points out that in effect, it is a better bargain. An eight - inch hot dog at 65 cents figures out to 8.12 cents an inch. A six - incher at 45 cents comes to 7.5 cents an inch. Any hungry, sharp - witted trader can see that's a bargain.

"As a matter of fact," Smith recounted, "many of our customers are buying two frankfurters now instead of one at the new low price."

On the average, in the past few years, EBRPD concession stands have been selling 70,000 wienies a year, Smith, very keen on alimentary statistics, declared.

And while that may be in the banquet bush leagues compared to the estimated national consumption of 15.7 billion it's still a lot of hot dogs.

To illustrate, Smith said if you stretched out 70,000 of the six - inch "dogs" they would reach 6.62 miles. The same yardstick applied to eight - inchers would give you a figure of 8.83 miles.

"But who wants to measure hot dogs?" Smith queried brightly. "Everybody wants to eat them."

Smith also imparted some inside concession stand lore: There is no such thing as a "foot - long" hot dog.

Remember, you read it here first.

Dipping back into primordial beginnings of hot dogs, Smith recalled at least one story (there are scores) that the legend of red hots began at the 1904 St. Louis World's Fair when a Bavarian sausage peddler began selling hot dogs minus the buns.

To make up for the lack, since the franks were hot and slippery with cooking oil, the hot dog hawker provided white gloves to hold them. But that was costly, even in 1904 and so the hot dog was married to the bun.

EBRPD concession stand hot dogs are all meat with no fillers or cereal, Smith declared proudly. They are composed of about 80 per cent beef and 20 per cent pork (and a dose of nitrates and nitrites.)

Smith shuns the upstart "turkey frank" which has gained favor in some circles. He predicts it will be just that: a "turkey."

So while there are moos and oinks in Park District franks, there will be no gobble - gobble.

Mustard is the most popular condiment to spread on the dogs, but fastidious EBRPD concession stand customers can make eclectic choices from catsup, pickle relish or onions.

Smith confides some people buy hot dogs minus the buns — "faddists, weight - watchers and the elderly. Our managers have the authority to give them a price break if it seems advisable."

On the matter of buns, Smith is a demanding martinet.

No emaciated, cold, dry buns. They must be fresh, warm and moist.

And now for the bad news. None of the Valley parks in the EBRPD system will be selling these cheap, luscious wonders.

Both Del Valle and Shadow Cliffs concession stands are owned by Doug and Claudia Hill, private concessionaires.

They can buy any kind of hot dogs they want, and they add the percentage they give to EBRPD onto the price of the weiners, making them costlier than their government - vended counterparts in Lake Temescal, Lake Anza, Roberts, Cull Canyon and Don Castro Regional Parks.

Eight - inch red hots are still in vogue at Lake Chabot and Alameda's Robert Crown Memorial State Beach.

To quote some New York legislator whose name has been lost, perhaps justifiably, in the mists of antiquity: The hot dog is "the symbol and pinnacle of American culinary art; America's culinary ambassador to the world."

What more can you add to that? Smith demanded...frankly.

'Outrage' in Morgan Territory

Contra Costans are upset over the re - grading of ranch roads in the new Morgan Territory Regional Preserve north of Livermore.

The former Cardoza property was bought recently by the East Bay Regional Park District to become a 970 - acre preserve open eventually to the public.

Members of the Contra Costa Park Council are calling new and re - graded roads an "outrage" which upsets the natural ecology of the area the park district is supposed to be preserving.

Worst of all, they say, is a fire road which was cut "in the most appalling manner," according to a letter signed by Mrs. Susan Watson of Orinda, president of the park council.

The letter continues, "The new construction has widened and deepened the existing roads with the excess dirt piled along the road bed.

"'Skidmarks' and turn areas further defaced what was a perfectly serviceable ranch road.

"The most tragic cut has been the new road.

"This unfortunate construction has moved and scattered boulders, created high, rought cutbanks and scarred permanently the western meadow and a secluded bowl of grassy woodland.

"All of this happened to a 'land bank' which is supposed to be a scenic preserve."

EBRPD directors responded with observations about "organizational weakness and management problem" (director Harlan Kessel of Oakland) and hopes for remedial actions.

Hulet Hornbeck, EBRPD chief of land acquisition, suggested a board policy be made on the pros and cons of fire trails.

To this, critic Watson responded, "The desecration of the park is not a total loss.

"Not only will some restoration there be possible, commensurate with public safety, but also protection of other lands from narrow and one - sided actions."

Foothill High proposes new scholarship chapter

PLEASANTON— Foothill High School will organize a local chapter of the California Scholarship Federation Thursday in the school's new cafeteria.

Bill Edgar, Pleasanton City Manager, will be featured speaker.

The California Scholarship Federation is an organization designed to recognize outstanding academic performance, leadership, citizenship, and scholarship. There are over 1,000 active CSF chapters in private and public schools throughout California.

Membership in CSF may be a factor in admission to some colleges and makes the student eligible to compete for CSF-sponsored scholarships and help qualify for honor societies in colleges or universities.

Parents are invited to attend the installation scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Rodeo parade entries invited by Livermore

LIVERMORE — The Livermore Jaycees will continue to accept entries for the annual Livermore Rodeo Parade through Saturday and entry forms may be obtained by telephoning 443-2264 or 443-4185. Forms are also available at the Livermore Chamber of Commerce office and Gib's Gulf Service, 1619 First Street.

The parade now has 60 entries signed up accounting for more than 400 people, seven floats and various entries in other categories. The Livermore Jaycees' stagecoach and Black Bart Gang will add to the excitement of the parade set for June 12 along First Street.

Financing the parade are the Livermore Stockman's Association and three interested parties, Tex Spruiell, Bailey Plumbing and Gene Morgan Insurance.

It was erroneously announced that Spruiell, Bailey and Morgan were parade sponsors. However, the parade is only being sponsored by the Stockman's Association with coordination of Livermore Jaycees.

Deputy DA to talk to law, order unit

George Nicholson, senior trial deputy district attorney for Alameda County, will discuss the constitutional right to personal security at the Citizens for Law and Order meeting Thursday at 10 a.m.

The annual membership meeting, which marks the group's sixth birthday, will be held in the Garden Center in Lakeside Park, Oakland.

Nicholson, a Dublin resident, prosecuted the Wolfpack cases, secured the first death penalty case sentence since the restoration of the death penalty, and has been active in the furtherance of new criminal legislation concerning youthful violent offenders.

No swimming sign posted

Shadow Cliffs Regional Park will be closed to swimming today through Friday for water treatment.

A park spokesman said the parks district wishes to modify the presently high bacteria count.

The park will remain open for picnicking and sunbathing.

CTA elects Dubliner

She represents CTA directorial district 7, which covers Contra Costa and Alameda counties. Mrs. King is a resident of Castilian Road in Dublin.

Nuclear plants can stand some quakes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Nuclear power plants in California can withstand the "maximum credible earthquake" for their locations, a geologist said Tuesday.

Dr. Douglas Hamilton, principal geologist for Earth Sciences Associates in Palo Alto, told a Los Angeles news conference his studies of offshore seismic faults have convinced him that nuclear plant construction would survive a strong earthquake.

Hamilton was hired by Paficic Gas and Electric Co. to study the effects of earthquakes on the Diablo Canyon and Humboldt Bay generating plants. He said his conclusions would also extend to the nuclear plant at San Onofre.

He said his comments were not made at the request of opponents to the proposition but are his own views.

He said he is opposed to Prop. 15, the nuclear power initiative, because present safeguards are "more than adequately covered by existing regulations."

A quake of 7.3 intensity did strike 30 miles south of the Diablo Canyon plant in 1927. Hamilton said the "maximum credible" temblor for the area is 7.5.

Part of Hamilton's studies were used last month by proponents of Prop. 15 as evidence that current safeguards are not adequate.

Hamilton predicted last month that an earthquake of 7.5 on the Richter scale could strike near the site of the Diablo Canyon plant in San Luis Obispo County. The plant was built to withstand a quake of 6.7 intensity.

He contended, however, that the seismic strength estimates for both Diablo Canyon and Humboldt are conservative and that the margin of strength could be higher than 6.7. Studies are currently under way to determine if the resistance to earthquake at the two plants is higher than originally believed.

Brown criticized by groups

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has given "carte blanche powers" to law enforcement officials on some legislation, a coalition of civil liberties groups said Tuesday.

"He's offering the same simplistic solutions to street crime that Republicans, Democrats and other politicians have been offering for the last 20 years," Ben Bycel of the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) told reporters.

He said the Democratic governor has offered "a generally cold shoulder" to him and other public interest lawyers.

But J. Anthony Kline, Brown's legal affairs aide, denied in an interview that Brown had given carte blanche powers to any group.

"I think the governor is concerned about civil liberties," Kline said, citing Brown's approval of two open-records bills last year. Kline said he himself had represented the ACLU in court for six years.

Strike threat intensifies

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — Some 2,000 county employes voted 4-1 this weekend to reject the Board of Supervisors' "final" pay package offer and reportedly threatened to strike June 2 if their demands are not met.

While the union says the county's offer amounts to 3.2 per cent, a spokesman for the supervisors says it is 3.7 per cent and "provides an increase to at least 4 per cent above the prevailing rate for comparable jobs."

The unions are asking for a 7 per cent increase or $60 per month, and claim supervisors misrepresented their demands to "bi-weekly."

The board last week approved their salary ordinance for the next year and set this Thursday for the second reading. It will go into effect July 1, and any subsequent adjustments will have to wait for the required 30 day lapse.

The unions, representing nearly 6,000 clerks, nurses, and welfare and hospital workers, claim their demands are "less than a quarter of what the county plans to spend this year on jails and courthouses," and says the supervisors have been "lying to the public and the press."

They also claim county management has "attempted to intimidate union members by threatening disciplinary action if they (attended Sunday's) meeting and vote(d) to strike."

A spokesman for county supervisors says pay raises are "based on a formula" and run the gamut from no increase to about a 13 per cent pay hike.

Apparently responding to a lambasting earlier this year by its Grand Jury, the county says any increase for craft workers cannot be justified.

According to their formula, craft workers "are already at least 16 per cent above the prevailing rate."

The union handed the rejection to its rank-and-file negotiating team

Learn how to dance like Astaire

PLEASANTON — The patter of feet will be heard beginning today as the recreation department begins a new tap dance class for teens and adults.

Beginners will assemble at 7:30 p.m. and intermediates at 8:30 p.m. at the Amador Recreation Center, 4455 Black Ave. Fee is $15 for five lessons and instructor is Don Wilson.

Encouraging signs this campaign—Borges

PLEASANTON — Frank Borges, inspector in the Livermore yard of the Alameda County Road is happy with the relative lack of illegally posted signs in county road right of ways, he told The Times yesterday.

"Compared to previous elections, it's much better," said Borges. "I'm really happy there are not many problems with signs."

Borges said he will call campaign committees of any candidates who may be violating the county's ban on signs in right of ways. Signs close to the roadway can be a disruption to traffic, said Borges.

Stanley Boulevard is the county road in the valley which gets the most political signs because it has the heaviest traffic, he said.

In past elections. it has been a little discouraging, said Borges. His crew would take down the signs any illegal signs, but a week or two later zealous political followers would put signs back up, apparently thinking they had been taken down by rivals.

Freedom near for students

LIVERMORE — Less than three weeks of school remain for Livermore Unified School District studects, most of whom can no doubt recite how many days, hours and minutes remain until the official closing June 10.

Graduation ceremonies have been set for the district's three intermediate and three high schools.

Graduation exercises for Del Valle High School will be held June 9 at 8 p.m. in the Student Union Building of Livermore High School. Betty Caell, school board trustee, will deliver the commencempnt speech.

Livermore's three intermediate schools will hold graduation ceremonies on June 10. East Avenue School's exercises are tentatively set for 1:30 p.m. assembly on the outside field.

School board trustee Dr. James McFarlane will be the speaker.

Junction Avenue School has set its graduation ceremony for 7 p.m. assembly on thh front lawn. Leo Croce, superintendent of schools, will be the speaker.

Mendenhall School graduation exercises are set for 12:35 p.m. assembly on El Padro lawn area. James Davis, school board trustee, will deliver the commencement speech.

Granada and Livermore High Schools will hold their graduation ceremonies on Friday, June 11.

Granada's graduation will take place on their athletic field at 5:30 p.m. School board trustee Ken Engelund will address the graduates.

Livermore High School's ceremonies will be held at 7 p.m. on their athletic field. School board president Manuel Prado will be the speaker.

Cryonics lecture at Amador

Cryonics, the science of low temperature suspension ("freezing") of humans upon death with the hope of future revival, will be the subject of a lecture tonight at the Amador Valley High School auditorium. Art Quaife of the Bay Area Cryonics Society will speak on "Cryonics, Your Alternative to Death" at the 8 p.m. illustrated lecture sponsored by the Amador Sociology Speakers Bureau.
